To use this resource digitally, you must download a copy to your own area before making any changes to the resource.

Introduction

During your engagement with the employer you may have questions that you would like answered about their company, the opportunities in the industry or more detail about the roles of different people. You may also be working to solve a company workplace challenge that the employer has set and want to ask for feedback on your work or you may require some help to move on.

As with any aspect of learning critique and feedback is important to help you make progress and improve. Sometimes it can be difficult to receive feedback and have your work critiqued but asking for, listening and acting on advice from others is key to being successful in future careers.

To maximise the opportunity for critique and feedback use the following prompts:

Midpoint Q&A Interaction

This is an opportunity to ask any questions and queries you may have to this point. You must be prepared to maximise the opportunity to interact with the employer. Find out from the employer or teacher when and how this will happen

Acting on midpoint Q&A interaction

Use the answers to your questions and information provided by the employer to further develop your work on the workplace challenge in preparation for your final presentation.

Endpoint feedback

After your presentation you will receive feedback. Remember this is a two-way process, you are also providing feedback to the employer through your presentation. Make sure you are prepared for the presentation.

- When is the presentation / or deadline for submission?
- How will you submit or deliver the presentation?
- What will you need to present?
- Don't forget to complete your reflection log and recognise the time the employer has provided.
